

Gemma Bowes

investigate psychological variables that may influence the use of patient-controlled analgesia. I am impressed with the SCI and I feel that it could be useful in assessing patients pre-operatively in order to identify control-related cognitions and the acceptance of being in control of ones pain.